REPORT #3 TO THE FETZER FOUNDATION

Prepared by Joseph R. Jochmans

On May 14 and 15, I had opportunities to walk through the Dustin Lake property, get dowsing and pendulum impressions as to its purpose for the Foundation, and begin the first phase of planting stones on the site. Here is an outline of points to be considered:

1. Two major aspects of earth energy systems are what are called downshoots and earthing points. On the average piece of property the size of Dustin Lake, 56 acres, one might expect to find perhaps one downshoot, and maybe an accompanying earthing point. But so far, in just two visits, I've located three major downshoots, 3 minor ones, and 2 earthing points. There may also be others, as well as several line crossings, not as yet specifically dowsed. Rarely does one find a place this earth energy active, giving it a tremendous potential for working with the healing process.

2. Dowsing pendulum indications are that when a period of earth chain energy shifts occur in the near future (within the next 25 years), the Dustin Lake property will have the potential of becoming a minor energy node point for the planet. This will increase its energy activity even more. Right now, that future node point could anchor itself in one of three or four possible locations, with the Dustin Lake property currently being the prime candidate. With the final purchase of the land, work could be done immediately to guarantee that node anchoring (by planting specific stones and symbols and working with sound and visualization on the site), as a prepared seed ground for the anchoring, to attract and draw down the node energy formation.

3. First impressions concerning the Foundation's use of the property, made on May 14, 1984, were that the site should first be developed under the general heading of a spiritual retreat that could eventually develop as a Nature Energy Healing Center. This is a place to communicate directly with the deva spirits, to learn and then apply what is given, directly on the land itself. Very significantly, these impressions were confirmed by Jim Gordon's reading on the site. The next morning we called Jim, and I have attached a transcript of our conversation pertinent to the Dustin Lake property. This also summarizes other impressions concerning how the land could be utilized. Read also the transcript of the Advisory Board Meeting of May 14, 1984, which further expands upon this subject.

4. Two striking parallels between my dowsing impressions and Jim's reading are these: In Report #2, I stated that only after the World Center was functioning would we learn new knowledge that could be applied to the Dustin Lake property. Jim noted that much work would be done outside the property and then brought together and perfected on the site. Also, early on the morning of May 15, in preparation for going to Dustin Lake to bury stones that afternoon, the pendulum chose three amethysts to be placed at three specific energy spots. Note that three hours later, in our phone conversation, Jim spoke of three major power points on the land that we will be able to work with. Stones were later placed at these locations, along with amber, lapis, rose, clear quartz and flourites.

5. There was some concern expressed over the recent pollution overflow in the nearby dumping ground, near Fourth Street and KL Avenue. All dowsing and pendulum indications are that this will not debilitate or seriously effect the energy patterns of the property. The pollution may occur down to 60 feet, but the yin water energy system is several hundred feet further down, and is pure. One indication is, curiously, that certain aspects of the pollution, the heavy metal contamination, may actually in some way help to enhance or amplify the energies. Another impression is that once the power centers are fully established on the property, steps can be taken to utilize the earth energies themselves to neutralize and clean the area as needed. This would be a most interesting challenge, and when accomplished, would be a way the Foundation could show the rest of the world how to deal with pollution in general.

6. Pendulum indications in the development of the Dustin Lake property follow these lines:

First phase: As a spiritual retreat, the forest land lake front would be kept in as much of its pristine condition as possible, with one or two nature trails accessed by no more than 30 to 50 people at any one time.

Second phase: A natural outdoor amphitheater, holding no more than 100 people, could be built with split log benches for nature and spiritual workshops, gatherings and lectures. Further develop nature trails to include access to the power centers of the land, and begin developing these as meditation centers. Also, build a small dock on the shore, preferably near the road, for just a few small canoes and also for a small houseboat or housecraft that can hold 20 or 30 people for group meditations on the lake.

Third phase: The house and other buildings situated presently on the southeast corner of the property will be removed. Build a lodge house, which could accomodate up to 100 people for sleeping. The lodge would have a cafeteria/dining room area that could double as a meeting hall, seating up to 200 people.

Fourth phase: As noted in the May 15 telephone conversation, and the Advisory Board meeting of May 14, the fourth phase would include the development of the power centers on the property as places for healing on physical, mental, emotional and spiritual levels. A permanent staff of 20 to 30 people would be situated at the lodge. These would include diagnosticians and counsellors, as well as general lodge, cafeteria and property maintenance personnel. Participants would stay at the lodge for periods of one or two weeks, working with the diagnosticians and counsellors. Advice would be given them as to what specific routes to take through the property, and the order of the power centers they need to go through and experience. The nature trails would be further expanded. Small structures, standing stones, stone circles, small pyramids, gazebos, shelters, benches, etc., would be placed at the power centers. These will evolve in design and function slowly, perhaps over the next 25 to 50 years. Maximum use of the land should never involve more than 200 to 300 people at a time.

7. As far as is known, this spiritual and natural healing center would be unique, nothing like it existing anywhere else in the modern world. It would be something like Findhorn in Scotland, but far more than this, with deva information not merely utilized for growing gardens, but applied for human growth and development on all levels. As Jim mentioned in our telephone conversation, the Dustin Lake property would be a place for:

- 1) Communicating with the nature kingdom; 2) Learning from them, and also from other sources (especially the Fetzer World Center); 3) Applying what is learned, and; 4) Providing education and a showplace to the world of the use of natural energies for multiple healing purposes.

The potential of the land for the Foundation and for the world is tremendous.

APPENDIX

On the morning of May 15, 1984, a special ceremony was performed at the Spiritual Devic Center at the 590 site involving Lynne Dailey, Kaye Averitt, Bruce Fetzner, and myself, in order to prepare to raise the energy system of the property to a new level. The ceremony performed last April 16, with the placing of the Egyptian stones at the property power spots, gave a lunar, feminine influx of energy to the site. The May 15th ceremony, taking place on the morning of the lunar eclipse, was for the balancing of the lunar/solar and feminine/masculine energies, with two women and two men taking part. The thirteen crystals that I acquired from Arkansas were put in a circle around the three Egyptian stones, marking the Spiritual Devic Center, and all were anointed, by the participants, with the oil of myrrh.

The next step will be to complete the three stage cycle by bringing in the solar, masculine influx of energy, which needs to take place on the morning of the summer solstice, June 21st. The day before, I will dowse the locations where the thirteen crystals will be buried, and help to dig small holes for these. On the morning of the solstice, it is important that as many of the Foundation members as possible take part in the ceremony. Each person should be involved with planting at least one of the crystals. For the convenience of those with different schedules, one ceremony will take place at 7:00 a.m., another at 10:00 a.m., and another at 12:30 p.m., with the crystal burying process taking place over the course of the morning. These crystals will be so placed as to help amplify and anchor the major energy ley lines coming through the Maple Street property. They will also mark the solstices and equinoxes, the rhythm of interaction between the Foundation participants and the spirit and energies of the Fetzer World Center. There will also be a special personal reading done for each Foundation member as to their spiritual role in this process.

At the time of the May 15 ceremony, a series of tarot and rune stone readings were done, with a focus on what the Foundation's challenges are at this moment. The first reading, using a double major arcana tarot deck, came up with the Emperor, Justice, and the Star. The second reading of two cards was the Emperor and the Wheel of Fortune (see pages 8-11). The rune stone reading was of stone number one, the Self (see page 12). In interpretation, there are two major themes, which emerge: 1) Finding identity and purpose and; 2) Fulfilling karmic responsibility.

First, it appears that the Foundation as a whole needs to more clearly define what its ultimate goals are, and that each and every participant get a clear vision of what is developing, and, most important, find new and better methods of implementing energies for the vision of fulfillment. The Emperor, repeated twice in the reading, is the card of focusing, channelling power in one direction of both starting and finishing an activity in the most efficient and effective way possible. The Star card further says, "Know where you are going. Define your goals, pour your energy where it is needed, but do not scatter or pour yourself in too many directions, or your greatest accomplishment, not yet manifest, will never come about."

The Justice card is one denoting a need for better balance, coordination of people and activities, and the ability to execute right action as a result.

The Justice card, with the Wheel of Fortune card, indicates that for both individuals and the Foundation as a whole, there are deep karmic patterns, begun long ago, that are in the process of being worked out and fulfilled. The healing work, started now, was actually performed in the past. We are returned together, to share once again, that knowledge at a time when the world needs it the most. Our choice is how best to perform this task, and our degree of commitment to it.

Key phrases in the rune stone reading (see page 12), complement the tarot reading. Pages are included showing the tarot cards. This is for each Foundation member to contemplate, to decide on an interpretation for yourselves--a deeper meaning of the symbols. Share your interpretation with me, and we can explore the other aspects together in more detail.
